

CABINET TACKLES MERCHANT MARINE

Direct Subsidy on U. S. Ships to be Discussed at Session.

Washington—President Harding and his cabinet have just tackled the most important and most far-reaching problem of the administration—something that relates to unemployment, more markets for agricultural products, limitation of armament and international relations. It is the question of a merchant marine.

Two hours of discussion in the cabinet led to no conclusion except a determination to thresh the whole thing out further at next Tuesday's meeting.

The big question being considered is whether or not the Harding administration will take a step toward preceding administrations but nevertheless pointed out as the only solution, namely, a direct subsidy of American ships.

Chairman Albert Lister has gone at the whole problem with characteristic vigor and has made a report to President Harding outlining the alternatives before the American government. He has shown how this is the critical moment and how American stands at the parting of the ways—either she will lose her chance to hold a merchant marine or she will avail herself of a golden opportunity to gather in trade round the world for the benefit of the American farmer and manufacturer.

Confidence in Lister. Mr. Lister has the confidence not only of the president but his associates. He foresees the failure of the United States mail company and seized the ships they had been operating under the shipping board, later being vindicated absolutely in the opinion of Mr. Harding by the collapse of the company. That has only served to accentuate the necessity of making it possible for American concerns to compete on the seas with ships flying a foreign flag.

Directly, it has been contended that the La Follette seamen's act, which is the basis of the shipping board, is impossible for American firms to sail ships as economically as those of other countries. Delicts have arisen from other sources. The question is not the ship, however, but the peace-time days before 1914 when it amounted merely to a subsidy to American enterprises. Now the government here owns a vast number of ships.

What shall it do with them? Shall they be sold at ridiculously low prices at a time when the price of tonnage is at its lowest point, and even then the shipping board is concerned to flounder for themselves in the face of conditions of competition that are ruinous; paying a subsidy for mail delivery and other items of the shipping board, to parts of the world hitherto untouched by the American trader?

Mr. Lister insists that the problem is national, not sectional, that it interests the entire country as much as the farmer in Kansas. He made a significant speech in New York last week on those points. That speech was unquestionably gone over by the cabinet before it was released to the press.

The farming interests have heretofore blocked a grant of subsidy. They have not seen the close relationship between the shipping board and the market for their surplus goods. Now that the farmers are appealing to the Harding administration to grant them a direct subsidy in the financial department, they are asking for a well as the handling of export trade, the Harding administration is inclined to believe the agricultural interests of the country will support a subsidy of the shipping board.

Another phase of the shipping question is that which touches our foreign relations. The big powers, gathering here for a conference of armament, know full well that behind the shipping board is the merchant marine, that the size of the auxiliary force of a nation on sea, make that nation weak or strong as the case may be. England could scrap her navy and still remain a world power because of her merchant marine. Navy ships now in the United States Government's possession be allowed to go to pieces through mismanagement by the shipping board, or companies to maintain those ships in the carrying trade? It is a naval as well as a commercial problem. Furthermore, the senate votes very soon on an act to grant armament to many districts of Panama canal tolls. England protests that such an exemption amounts to a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which is supposed to insure the British against discrimination in the tolls.

Following the address, the children received the sacrament of confirmation. A very impressive sign was made with the arms crossed in white with white veils as they marched in rows to the communion rail. Knelt and received the sacrament. Each boy and girl had a sponsor.

Archbishop Messmer, accompanied by several local priests, went to Edgerton Monday, where confirmation was administered. Members of the clergy from outside of the city present at the ceremonies were Reverend R. J. Bonch, Milton Junction; M. E. Downs, Whitewater; Thomas Dempsey and Rev. J. E. McManis, Edgerton; George Wegman, P. J. Donahue and J. J. Dowling, Beloit; Thomas Pierce, Sharon; John Shanahan, Delavan; William McDermott, Evansville; and Rev. J. E. McManis, Edgerton, father of Oconomowoc. All local priests were present at the services.

STOMACH UPSET?
Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking laxatives or trying to get poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.
Have you a bad, taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, or feeling of fullness, no ambition or energy, trouble with indigestible foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain.
Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

CATHOLICS URGED TO WIDER STUDY

Know Church Better, Archbishop Pleads—305 Are Confirmed.

In his address preceding confirmation ceremonies at St. Patrick's church here Sunday afternoon, Archbishop Sebastian Messmer, Milwaukee, made a plea to those about to be confirmed and others in the congregation, to make more of a study of the Catholic religion and to learn more of the history and ideals of the church.

He urged women's societies to take up this study and parents to send their children to parochial schools in order to make the Catholic church all-powerful and of benefit to the nation as well as the individual.

The class of 305 children and adults was one of the largest in the history of St. Patrick's church. Confirmation was administered by the archbishop in the morning at St. Mary's church, when 120 were received.

More Private Studying.
"We do not do enough private studying of our religion," stated Archbishop Messmer. "We study all about natural life, about the causes of all things, and about all sciences, when there is but one science—the study of God and of the church which knows the true facts of life."

"The Catholic church is the only true church and has divine power given by him. Other churches have no divine power."
"Catholic societies should take up the study of the religion. It is not necessary to have a priest to explain it, but it should be discussed as a part of the meetings. Questions should be asked and answered as they come up. Catholics should be able to answer them."

The matter of the Catholic parochial schools was discussed. Archbishop Messmer stated that the church does not find fault with anything in the public schools except the lack of religious instruction. This is an absolutely necessary part of the education of any Christian child, he stated.

Religion Should Advance.
"Education has advanced greatly within the last century and religious education should advance at the same rate," he continued. "Just as the children of today know more than the adults of 100 years ago ever knew, so should the children of today know more of the religion of their fathers than the adults of that time."

Following the address, the children received the sacrament of confirmation. A very impressive sign was made with the arms crossed in white with white veils as they marched in rows to the communion rail. Knelt and received the sacrament. Each boy and girl had a sponsor.

Archbishop Messmer, accompanied by several local priests, went to Edgerton Monday, where confirmation was administered. Members of the clergy from outside of the city present at the ceremonies were Reverend R. J. Bonch, Milton Junction; M. E. Downs, Whitewater; Thomas Dempsey and Rev. J. E. McManis, Edgerton; George Wegman, P. J. Donahue and J. J. Dowling, Beloit; Thomas Pierce, Sharon; John Shanahan, Delavan; William McDermott, Evansville; and Rev. J. E. McManis, Edgerton, father of Oconomowoc. All local priests were present at the services.

HAIR BOBBED, TEA AND CAKE SERVED IN GOTHAM HOTEL

New York—A barber shop and hair-bobbing shop do more, where tea and cake are served daily with music from 4 to 6 p. m. have been opened in the old Hotel Knickerbocker on the corner of Broadway and 14th street, along the Great White Way. They were wont to forego that, put one foot on the rail, gaze at a famous picture of old King Cole and do things now forbidden by an amendment to the constitution and legislation supplementary thereto.

As another mark of progress a publication in pink specializing in photographs of actresses and actors has no place in this barber shop. It has given way to the highest class of magazines.

Caruso used to live in the hotel. Since prohibition it has been turned into stores and offices.

DISCUSS LOWER ICE CREAM PRICES
Minneapolis—The possibility of the return of the 10-cent ice cream sundries and lower prices for other dishes will be discussed at the annual convention of the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, which opened a three-day session here Monday.

Statistics compiled by the association show that consumption of ice cream in the United States has increased approximately 100,000,000 gallons since prohibition went into effect.

Demand for the ice cream cone has fallen off considerably, due, it was said, to the fact that youngsters are giving preference to sodas and sundae.

CROP GROWTH IS HALTED BY FROST

Ripening and Harvest Hastened; Farm Work Reported Well Advanced.

Madison—Killing frosts in Wisconsin at the end of last week terminated crop growth in the state, according to the weekly bulletin of the crop reporting service. The effect of the frost was said to have been beneficial by causing crops still in the field to ripen, and by hastening the progress of the rapidly existing soil condition in advance with much plowing, clearing, and repairing already done by farmers over the state.

Corn hatching and shredding is said to be progressing rapidly except in the southern counties, where it has been too wet for work during the week. The corn ear work has been damaging the crop in the field.

Potatoes were killed by the frost, with the result that the tubers will now ripen fast and hasten digging. White grub worms are said to have been working on the tubers, reducing their quality considerably.

Winter grains which were early sown have made a sufficient growth to enter the winter, according to the report, which says that soil condition for this crop have been excellent for it during the past week. The new seedlings of hay have recovered from the drought of mid-summer and are reported to be in good condition to enter the winter.

Cabbages have not made the growth expected from weather conditions. The yield will be slightly over that of the previous year, the report declares. The onion crop is also said to be very short.

Sugar beet harvest has begun with a yield above average. The livestock condition is reported as from fair to good.

HADLEY CONCERT HERE TONIGHT IS OFFERED BY U. W.

One of the educational features of the University of Wisconsin is the promotion of concert and lecture programs. With $200,000 a year put into University extension, a part of this money is placed each year in carrying the overhead expense of lecture and lecture courses.

Janesville is favored this year by having one of these courses put on for the benefit of the public. The first number of the course will be a Methodist church at 8 p. m. Monday when the Hadley Concert company of Chicago, with seven people, will give a varied program of instrumental and vocal numbers, the repertoire of which will include oratorio, opera, quartets, and ensemble numbers. Classical selections as well as some more recent, popular compositions will delight the audience of music lovers.

The other numbers to appear during the winter are: The Smith Spring Holmes company, and the Mendocino Musical club. The lectures will include J. Smith Damon, the noted potter and lecturer; Sarah Mildred Wilmer, world renowned reader; and William Sterling Ball, superintendent of Dikeman character. The course is being promoted by the men of the Methodist church.

$35,000 PLEDGED FOR NEW CHURCH

Footville Congregation Raises Necessary Sum at Rousing Meetings.

Footville will have a new church. The sum of $35,000 was pledged Sunday for this purpose. It will be built by the members and friends of the First Christian church, of which the militant pastor is the Rev. Gerald L. Smith.

Sunday there was an all-day meeting at the church. It was the home of the old members and neighbors and friends. The Rev. George L. Solvay, evangelist, took charge of the raising of the fund, following the service for the children in the morning, with the candle drill, a beautiful ceremony.

When adjournment came for luncheon, $32,550 had been pledged. At the afternoon service this was raised to $34,750. In the evening the sum of $35,000 was completed with smaller pledges.

Punks Are Praised.—The congregation has funds to go ahead and build the church. Under the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Smith, the interest in the work has been raised as never before since the first Christian church in Wisconsin was built on top of the hill on the Madison road, 60 years ago. A large program of community service is planned.

The church was crowded all day. There were many visitors from all about the section. Friends came from Rockford and Freeport. At 1 p. m. a cafeteria luncheon was served by the women of the church to several hundred persons. At 2:30 the church was again filled. Following the program of services and a half hour devoted to raising additional funds, an address was made by Stephen Solvay, editor of the Janesville Gazette, on "The Old Days and the Old Ways."

World Growing Better.—The theme was of the hardships and the struggles of the old days. The sturdiness of the pioneer, the battles he fought with elemental enemies, the pleasures he had in conquering the elements of the world, the sacrifices made for all, the development of the wilderness into the splendid country and section we know of now.

"The old days and the old ways have their glories and their history," said Mr. Solvay. "But these times are better. I am not one who believes the world is going to the dogs. The answer is in just such stirring comparisons. The world is better. In this church this afternoon—the solid, substantial American with character and stability, with vision and hope and desire to succeed. A thousand other groups and communities, all having a common hope and a desire that progress shall be made without stain—their are the bulwarks of our national life."

Unity Was Urged.—He reviewed the settlement of the town of Plymouth, the struggles of the first settlers, the hardships of the pioneer life, and closed with an appeal for unity of the people of Footville and vicinity in support of the disarmament conference and celebration of armistice day.

In the evening another service was held, led by Evangelist Solvay, with another audience which filled the church to capacity.

Alvin S. Page is the assistant chief clerk of railway mail service at Ft. Worth, Tex., whose bravery foiled train bandits who planned a gigantic train robbery. Must Rebuild Beloit Track Within Week

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison.—An injunction to restrain the railroad commission from enforcing its order forcing the Chicago and Northwestern railway to rebuild its track to the Thompson Plow and Engine works at Beloit, was refused by Judge E. Ray Stevens in circuit court here Monday. The track must be rebuilt before next Monday or the company pays a $10,000 penalty.

The company had torn up the track one night this summer, to avoid court action restraining it. The company had been ordered to rebuild the track by the railroad commission, but the company had refused to do so.

Judge Stevens declared that the railroad commission order was enforceable to the company's conduct, and that the court would not enjoin its enforcement.

REDUCE FREIGHT RATES AND WAGES

Traffic Bureau of Janesville Says One Must Follow the Other.

Resolutions demanding the decrease in freight rates required by business in order to bring back to normal conditions in industry and commerce at the same time there is a decrease in wages of employees have been passed by the traffic bureau and copies sent to congress. The traffic bureau says wages should be lowered at the same time freight rates are reduced in order to meet the present situation. The memorial and statement follows:

"It is a matter of common knowledge that there exists at the present time a very general depression in all lines of business. Purchases are made to cover bare necessities only. Most manufacturers are running on part time. Many industries are closed entirely. Labor throughout the country is idle, and in many communities, there is actual suffering as a result of this business depression.

An investigation that has been made indicates that the price of practically every commodity has been heavily reduced. Freight rates, which are such a large factor in our industrial business, have not been reduced, but remain at the highest level in history. There can be no return to normal business conditions until the price of transportation is reduced to the same level as the commodity values. This business of this country has been developed and a wide distribution of commodities encouraged under freight rates that were a proper relation to the price of the commodities, and until rates are readjusted so as to approximate such a level, it is obvious that business confidence cannot be restored.

In addition, the large increases made in wages and the number of employees, during the period of Federal control, so-called National Agreements were adopted, which increased the same rate of pay for the increase in operating expenses, since they restrict employees in the discharge of their duties and require the employment of skilled labor in the performance of work previously performed by unskilled labor.

"The National Agreements are still in effect, and their abrogation is uncertain. On April 14, 1921, the Railroad Labor Board announced that these agreements would be abrogated on July 1st; but subsequently the board reversed its decision.

"The failure of the railroad board to carry out its duty is one of the principal factors in the present economic situation. The carriers are hampered by the policy and slowness of action of the Railroad Labor Board. Any condition which prevents the employer and employee from dealing directly with each other is bad and is a fertile field for dissensions. It is not fair to the carriers not to let the public that the railroad employees should be given preference over other employees performing work of a similar nature in private industries. These private industries are readjusting the wages of their employees to correspond to the reduction in the price of their products, and until the railroad employees are placed upon a corresponding basis with those of private industries, it cannot be said that the railroads are efficiently or economically operated.

"After careful consideration of the transportation problem and the present business and economic situation, we are of the belief that the return to normal business conditions requires:

"First: Recognition of the fact that efficient and economical operation of the railroads depends primarily on the payment of wages by the railroads no higher than prevail in other lines of industry for similar work.

"Second: A general reduction in freight rates equal at least to a decrease in operating expenses brought about by a readjustment of wages on a just and equitable basis.

"Third: That the carriers should immediately proceed to readjust both wages and rates so that such reductions may take effect simultaneously.

"RESOLVED, THEREFORE, by the shippers and receivers of freight of the city of Janesville, that they demand of the Railway Executives that they abrogate immediately the so-called National Agreements, made effective during the period of Federal control, and which, in its opinion, expired with the return of the railways to private management, and to it further:

"RESOLVED, that it demand of the Railway Executives that wages of railway employees be adjusted upon the basis of wages to similar classes of labor in private employment, and simultaneously with such adjustment a horizontal reduction in rates at least equivalent to the amount of wage reductions be established; and be it further:

"RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Association of Railway Executives, members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and given to the public through the medium of the press."

MILLIONS IN GOLD USED IN THE ARTS

Two Billion Dollars in Twenty Years Consumed by Manufacturers.

(Special to the Gazette.)

New York—One of the curiosities of the golden flood which has poured in upon the people of the United States since the beginning of the war is the addition of over $500,000,000 worth of gold manufactured to the already large stock of personal effects of this character.

The additions made to the already existing stocks of material manufactured from the precious metal have been made in the Trade Record of the National City bank of New York, exceptionally large during and since the war. In pre-war years, says the bank's statement, the gold imported into the United States for manufacturing purposes was about one and one-half billion dollars in the 20 year period, and an estimate for the year 1920, the Indian government states officially that the uncolored gold imported into India may be considered as being used for ornaments and manufactures, and the Statesman's Year Book of 1921 in recording the heavy gold imports of India remarks that "gold is used chiefly in the form of ornaments."

Two Billion Worth Used

These figures, which indicate a world consumption of fully $2,000,000,000 worth of gold for industrial purposes in the short period of 1890-1910—an average of about $100,000,000 per annum—throw, adds the bank's statement, an interesting light upon that much discussed question of "what becomes of the gold." World statisticians estimate the total output of gold in the world since the discovery of America at slightly more than $16,000,000,000, while the annual studies of the United States mint bureau regarding gold monetary stocks in all the countries of the world have never disclosed the existence of more than eight and one-half billion dollars as the grand total of gold money.

Large Use of Gold

In other parts of the world the normal consumption of gold for industrial purposes is also large. Studies of this subject made by the United States mint bureau in the years immediately preceding the war indicated that the world's industrial consumption of gold had aggregated about two billion dollars in the short period 1890-1910, of which about 25 per cent was used in the United States. In the occidental world alone the total consumed for manufacturing purposes was about one and one-half billion dollars in the 20 year period, and an estimate for the year 1920, the Indian government states officially that the uncolored gold imported into India may be considered as being used for ornaments and manufactures, and the Statesman's Year Book of 1921 in recording the heavy gold imports of India remarks that "gold is used chiefly in the form of ornaments."

Probably three-fourths of the gold used in the United States for "manufactures and arts" is utilized for jewelry, watches, etc. Experts estimate that the quantity supplied to the dental trade averages about $4,000,000 a year, of which, however, a considerable percentage is returned by them in the form of gold obtained from "old work" while recently published estimates of the yellow metal used in the manufacture of gold leaf puts the average at about $1,000,000 a year. The mere remelting of old, unused, and sometimes forgotten jewelry during the war added more than $100,000,000 of gold to the world's stock available for monetary purposes.

"The Love Pendulum"

THE CHANGE

One last little incident transpired to make the final days in the city bitter. Shirley, my little, hissing friend, was in to see me. I was packing books ready to ship to the country place. "I think you're very brave going to a new place in the country," she said. "Gwen thaid the only way to thave it to make more, not to spend it." "Gwen is only partly right," I answered, crossly. "The only way to save is to make more and to spend less at the same time." "You're very wise," Conthanth. Shirley remarked, pulling her shawls around her as she rose to leave. "May I come down for week end parties?" "All the week-end parties you want I'd love to have you. I'll make you do the dusting." "What fun! I never duthed. Fanny our Connie being her own cook and maid." But Shirley never came after all. And that summer, she did the unexpected, she was always doing the unexpected. She ran away with her father's chauffeur three weeks after we had moved and the papers were full of the new "romance." Her father accepted it with as good grace as possible; put the man in his bank and bought them a very stunning home at the seashore. And the next time I saw Shirley she had forgotten her lip in the more serious interest—a very small infant son. "Our last night here," I said with a little sigh with Shirley, "I'll tell you a story. 'Oh, Win, I'm so tired. But the trunks have gone and the boxes and tomorrow—tomorrow you'll come home to a dinner that I shall cook and a wee, little place in this country.' "Well, let's make a night of it now," since tomorrow we go to jail," Win answered. "Now don't look at me, I'd stamped you, silly child. I shan't mind the country when I get there. But do let's have a nice time tonight. Did you save out a dress to wear?" "I needed. But I had promised to go see Mrs. Anderson and the baby Connie, and not all Win's persuasion would keep me away. "The baby hasn't been well and I must see her before I leave," I told him. "Do come along." "Now what on earth do I want to see a washerwoman's baby for?" he demanded. "If you feel your hands will be eternally ruined otherwise, you go. Take a taxi and make it wait for you, and join me—I'll be at Gwen's. We'll wait for you there." At Gwen's. Or would it be all ways at Gwen's. But I was anxious to see the baby again. So I went. "And it's the country will put roses back in your cheeks again," Mrs. Anderson told me. "I wish I could take Connie along. It would put roses in her cheeks, too." I said, looking at the tiny thing wistfully. I wanted to pick her up in my hand and carry her off with me. But I did not dare. And again I felt, as I drove up to

X. BOLDIER, WHO SENT HIS WIFE TO "ROME"

One day in 1869 when the Nile, one of the old-time wood-burning Missouri steamers, stopped near the mouth of Mississippi river in Montana to take on wood, two "woodhawks" came aboard. "Woodhawks" were men who cut firewood and sold it on the banks of the river to sell to the steamboats. These two men were famous frontier characters, "X" Beldier and "Liver-Eatin'" Johnson.

Among the passengers on the Nile was a party of eastern tourists, among them several women who were enjoying for the first time the thrills of being in the wildest "Wild West." They were especially delighted at the appearance of Beldier and Johnson and at once began asking questions of these "picture-gone" characters as they called them. The woodhawks were not especially pleased to be treated like a pair of Indians, but said nothing about it. Finally one of the women inquired, "Mr. Beldier, are you married?" "Yes," replied "X."

"Oh, I would never have guessed it," said the woman, "ah—a white woman?" "Indian," granted Beldier.

"How delightful! A native of these great plains! Where is she now?" "Oh, I've sent her to Rome," said the woodhawk. "To Rome?" "Yes, he educated. How romantic! Do you mean Rome, Italy?" "No," answered "X," with a grim smile. "To Rome on the prairie!" The woman stopped asking questions.

Beldier served as a scout with Gen. Miles in the Sioux war of 1876, but he was better known as a vigilante leader in the early Montana mining camp. John X. Beldier was his real name, but he was called "X" Beldier because he always signed his warnings to western "bad men" with the simple mysterious letter "X." One such warning was usually enough to make the bad man leave camp.

Later "X" was sheriff of Lewis and Clark county. He once invited the governor of Montana and other state officials to visit his jail and inspect a new steel cage of which he was very proud. The officials came and Beldier took them into the cage. "Now, dern ye!" he said to his prisoners. "Ye've been edgin' off lately when I was tellin' my stories of the old days an' not listenin' to 'm. Now, I reckon ye'll listen."

WOULD REORGANIZE U. W. STUDENT COURT
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madison—Reorganization of the student court as the executive and judicial branch of student self-government at the University of Wisconsin, is recommended by a special committee of the student senate which will report soon. The committee recommends a modified set of customs for freshmen to conform to, a new would place enforcement in the hands of the court.

"The present system is not self-government, but a hybrid between faculty control and student government, by which neither exercises full responsibility and neither exercises sufficient authority to exercise order," the report declares. Recommendation is made that the class rush be reorganized along with green caps.

Meeting in Turtle
There were 75 people attending the community meeting held in Turtle township Friday night, despite the inclement weather. Farm Bureau Secretary C. E. Culver and County Agent H. T. Glasse were in attendance, their auto being submerged in a gravel embankment. Work of the Farm Bureau was explained by Secretary Culver, who urged farmers to unite into one national organization for county, state and national effectiveness. Advance and profit from liming soils was talked by the county agent.

In the program, there were speaking and entertaining features by residents of the township. Supper was served by the women of the community and an enjoyable meeting.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

In reading the letters signed "An American Citizen," "An Ulsterite," and "William Conway," I find these correspondents making profitable replies to the questions raised by the Encyclopaedia Press, called "Ireland and the Ulster Legend." In this little book I fear they would find the comparisons between the Ulsterites and the "gentle people of Ireland" somewhat shocking. They would there find proof that the agricultural holdings of Ulster are below those of the rest of the island, and even below those of the rest of Ireland. They will find also that the income tax assessments per head in Ulster are less than in either of the other provinces. Ulsterites are even anxious to get away from Ulster, for its emigration record compares unfavorably with that of the rest of Ireland. "Ireland and the Ulster Legend," they will find comparisons to shock them, and if they stand that shock they will get another in the statistics on "Physique and Hygiene."

But the biggest shock will come from the statistics regarding morals; to be plain, they include the records of illegitimacy. I would recommend them also to read something about the conditions of the factory workers in Ulster. Not wishing to take away anything from the pleasure these correspondents will experience in reading a little book which will cost them only 50 cents, I refrain from giving them the figures; but to save them from "the blow that kills," I say that the book which deals with the police records, especially the section on "Habitual Criminals," and the figures on houses of ill fame.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and in love with a fellow 23. He is very nice and always treats me like a gentleman should, but my parents object to my going with him on account of the difference in our ages. Do you think his age would make any difference to our happiness?

I have a girl friend who always laughs at me for going with such an old man, as she calls him. She causes a great deal of disturbance and gets on my nerves. I really believe she is jealous. Do you think she is? What ought I to do to stop her from laughing at me?

He never mentioned that he loved me. How am I to tell whether he loves me or not? I am very much in love with him and desire to gain his love, but he is very quiet and I am afraid he will never speak. How can I make him betray his feelings?

BLACK-EYED SUSAN.
A man of 23 is too old for a little girl of 17 to fall in love with. At that age the girl is inexperienced and what she believes to be love may be infatuation. From what you say, I should judge that your friends in an unusually honorable type of man and realizing how young you are he is training from speaking of love. Let him remain your friend and do not contrive to make him speak of love. You should respect his silence.

Let your girl friend laugh and take her remarks with as much good nature as you can. If she finds she is not teasing you, she will not enjoy trying to tease. It may be that she is jealous and would like to go with the man herself; I cannot say.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What should a girl say when a young man asks for her company and she wishes to accept?

What would be nice to put in a lunch box for a social and how should the box be fixed?

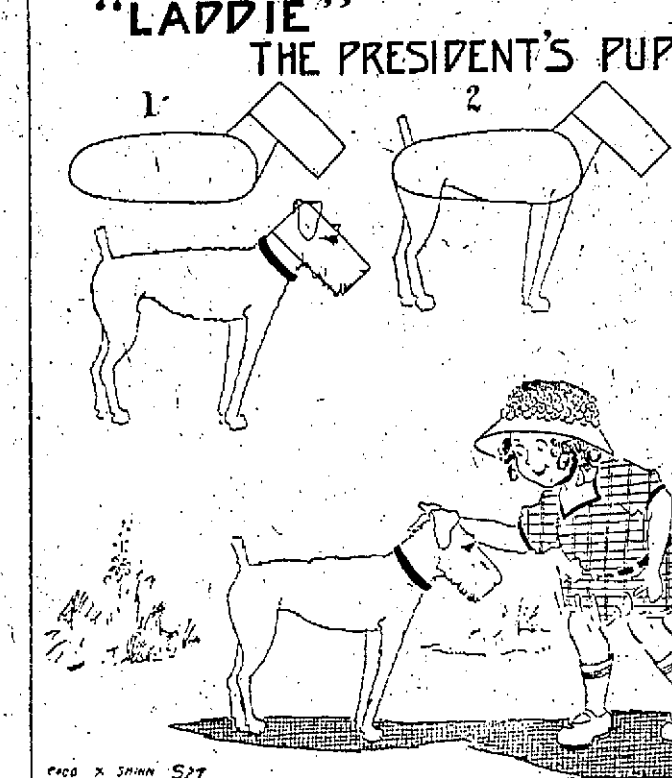

G. L. E.
The girl should say what the spirit moves her to say at the time. "All right." "Yes, I would like to." Something else might seem more appropriate and if it answers the question it would be all right.

A box lunch for two should contain four large or eight half-sized sandwiches, two eggs boiled or devilled, two portions of potato salad or a small pan of beans, two pieces of cake and fruit. In the box there should also be paper napkins, paper plates (which can be secured in a small size) and two forks. Neatness is absolutely necessary to make

Today's Short Story

By GEORGE T. BYE

Illustrations by ARLENE COYLE

The Sob Story

There was a half hour's gap between trains, and I carried my suitcase into the waiting room, conscious of being followed by a youthful woman in a rather ill-fitting dress and dingy large hat that had a wild red, yellow and green ribbon wound around it and streaming down the back for several inches.

To be followed by a young woman—wasn't that a matter, is a pleasant novelty to a homely old bachelor like me. At first I was afraid my imagination was working to the extent of my misunderstanding several times, sure enough I saw that the girl trailed me wherever I moved. I stopped and waited, so that she might catch up.

The saddest blue eyes were soon looking into mine. "Will you help me, sir?" she asked.

"What is it? What have you to sell?" I might have been a little rough. It was no complaint to be followed because I might look an easy dime or quarter.

She cocked her little head on the side in a sorrowful way to emphasize the extent of my misunderstanding. "I am in great trouble," she said. "It is not a matter of money."

"Well, let's hear it." As we turned toward a seat, I noticed a stout woman waiting with something like amusement in the hang of his mouth. Then he jerked himself about and started walking off.

"I haven't a friend to turn to. The girl's voice was at once a soft wall. She looked at me with a keen, earnest look. "It's all because of my cruel step-father."

"The boy I have wanted to marry is poor. He is a plumber's apprentice. He saw how unhappy I was in my step-father's house, and proposed that we marry at once and fly away. I was just as you are now. I was about to elope, they arrested me for robbing a jewelry store. They arrested me too. I was in jail for three days. Now Freddie is in the workhouse for 30 days—and everybody is turned against me."

"I can't find a friend in town. To-day I hoped to interest a girl with a trade. If you could go with me to my step-father's house and in—"

"We did—very," was the answer. "You were not ill, I hope?" asked the hostess, turning to the wife.

"No," said the young wife. "I was not. But I couldn't have yawned often."

NEW LAW BRINGING TEACHERS TO STATE, SAYS BOARD OFFICER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison—Teachers are returning to Wisconsin schools because of the new retirement fund law passed by the legislature. R. E. Loveland, secretary of the annuity board administering the law, said he declares that the law is working to keep experienced instructors in the schools of the state.

The annuity board meets November 15 to consider policies of investing funds paid in by teachers and state, for administration of the law. Instructors of all state educational institutions outside of Milwaukee contribute a part of the retirement fund, which is then invested by the annuity board.

The new law is being rapidly rounded into working shape. Mr. Loveland said. The present investments of the funds is said to be the principal question in dispute, and will be settled by the board at its November meeting. There is said to be general satisfaction with the working of the law.

Billy Whiskers

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

"Hark!" whispered Billy. "What is that sound I hear? It sounds like some one sneaking along, for I hear a heavy twin crack, and then all was still. If some one were coming who had a right to come they would not stop at a twin crack, but come right on."

Presently they heard a stealthy step, another twin crack, and the outline of two men appeared, creeping toward them. Billy Jr. jumped to one side just in time to dodge a lasso that was thrown by one of the men. Stubby barked and flew at the men, which attracted the attention of the man around the camp fire, who thought the dog had discovered a spy lurking near, and in a few minutes the pickets were in hot pursuit of the man who had tried to capture Billy Jr.

While all this commotion was going on, Billy Jr. and Stubby thought it a good time to escape, so they took to their heels, and regardless of briars and stones ran as fast as they could until they were out of sight and hearing of the soldiers around the camp fire.

All was dark and still, with only now and then the cry of a night-bird to disturb the quietness. When they had stopped running and came down to a walk, Stubby said:

"Billy, where do you expect to go first? Or haven't you laid any plans yet?"

"Yes, my plan is to go to the sea-coast, and watch our chance to get on a vessel bound for America. If we can find one, if not, one bound for England. No more foreign countries for me. I am tired of hearing the people's gibberish. It is so dark I can't see any landmarks, so we might as well rest here until morning. We are far enough from the regiment now, that we can not be found. If we never come back to the soldiers, will think some of the Russians stole us. It will never occur to them that we would desert."

"They were just about to lie down when Stubby said:

"Billy, I smell water. There must be some near here, and before I rest

TRAINED NURSE LAUDS TRUTONA

Says It's Wonderful Strength Builder—Just What Thousands Need Now.

"I can safely say that as a strength builder, this medicine Trutona is wonderful and it is certainly worthy of a recommendation to thousands of sufferers from that most common of all American ailments—constipation." Is the unqualified assertion of Mrs. F. C. Walters, trained nurse of 333 Butler street, Waterbury, Conn., who has the merits of Trutona, the famous tonic now being introduced here. Mrs. Walters has nursed in large hospitals in Dubuque, Chicago, Minneapolis and other places. Her own health was so bad that she was unable to judge the merits of any preparation.

"A wonderful strength builder," she says of Trutona—just what thousands of sufferers need at this time of year to put their systems in condition to ward off attacks of pneumonia, coughs, colds, sore throat, diphtheria and the like which will come if you do not make up your mind, just this one time at least, to escape the ravages of winter that are sure to come. You'll be surprised at Trutona's effectiveness in the rapidity with which it builds up the system. Buy this famous tonic at the PEOPLES Drug Store in Janesville, where it is being specially introduced and explained. Trutona is sold in Clinton at J. Borden's Drug Store and all good druggists in surrounding towns.

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

A YOUNG-OLD FACE

Most moral advice has a basis of sound common sense behind it. Preachy sort of people will tell you to smile because it lets a little sunlight into the world, or because of some equally bromide reason. A doctor will tell you that smiling improves the digestion, because the nerves are quiet and aid instead of impeding the work of assimilating food. Some of them will also add that anger, frowns, silliness, cause poisons to form which affect the system adversely.

Any facial specialist will tell you that smiling is the best habit you can form to keep the features young, because it develops a little upward twist to the corners of the mouth.

Betty A.—You should weigh about 110 pounds. If you do not overeat and bathe regularly, your skin will be all right when you have fully grown up.

Discouraged—Send a stamped, addressed letter for the formula. And meantime, massage the scalp every day until the muscles have been loosened from the bones of the head and the hair glows from the increased circulation.

Anxious Red.—A cold bath taken every morning on rising will harden your skin, so it will not be sensitive to the air and sun. If you have never taken them, begin by sponging with the cold water, and after a few days try the shower, but do not delay the time for taking the full plunge every morning in the tub. This should be followed quickly by friction from a coarse towel. If this habit is formed now, there need be no cessation in these baths throughout the year.

Combination.—A good osteopath would surely cure you of all your ailments. Do not attempt to "doctor yourself" by using one of the medicines mentioned.

Anxious Red.—A cold bath taken every morning on rising will harden your skin, so it will not be sensitive to the air and sun. If you have never taken them, begin by sponging with the cold water, and after a few days try the shower, but do not delay the time for taking the full plunge every morning in the tub. This should be followed quickly by friction from a coarse towel. If this habit is formed now, there need be no cessation in these baths throughout the year.

Combination.—A good osteopath would surely cure you of all your ailments. Do not attempt to "doctor yourself" by using one of the medicines mentioned.

Huggins Says Yanks Will Come Back and Capture Series

DOUGLAS IS SURE HE WILL TWIRL GIANTS TO FLAG

New York.—"Mays will come back and the Yanks are far from beaten," said Manager Huggins of the American League yesterday.

"The Yanks have not fallen in a crucial series this season and they won't fall in this, the most crucial of all," he added.

Walter Hoyt, who won the second game of the series, is Huggins' choice for Monday.

"You Tell 'Em I'm Good!"

"The folks down in Birmingham will win the world's championship for the New York Nationals, if I am called upon to pitch the deciding game."

same" was the message Phil Douglas gave to the Associated Press.

And the Giants believe it will be just about Phil's turn to twirl again when the all important game comes around. Should he pitch this contest as skillfully as he pitched Sunday in leaving the Yankees to accept defeat, his team mates are confident he will make good his word to his southern home town followers.

Pitched to Ruth.

"All I wanted Sunday was a couple of runs and when the boys began hitting in the eighth inning, I knew the ball game was 'in'" said the big pitcher.

"I pitched to every batter during the game including Ruth. He hit a low splitter in the ninth, when I knocked his homer. I think he out guessed me, for he was all set for the kind of a ball he hit. He gave it a good ride."

"Samurai" Phil, veteran of many major league pitching battles, now is in his second world's series, but, as he says, he was about as much spectator as player in his first one. In 1913 when he was with the Chicago Cubs in the series against the Boston Red Sox. That year portside hurlers had the call and Douglas' only part was that of relief pitcher in one game.

8,000 BADGERS ASKED TO ATTEND HOMECOMING

Madison.—Getting in direct touch with 8,000 alumni and reaching as many more indirectly is the plan of the Homecoming committee this year. This plan reaches more graduates than ever heretofore attempted. Along with the personal letters sent out to the alumni, Coach Jones is sending letters telling of the two big games, the method of securing seats, and the facilities for taking care of spectators in the new addition to the stadium. By sending these letters the athletic department hopes to get a large number of alumni to return to both of the big games.

RIPON SURPRISES: TIES MARQUETTE, 0-0

Milwaukee.—Ripon college pulled a surprise on Marquette Saturday afternoon by holding the locals to a scoreless tie. Jerdon, Quinn and Lawwig featured for the invaders, while Whalen and Shesley starred for Marquette.

Women's Golf Title to Hollins

Deaf, N. J.—After holding undisputed authority over the women golfers of America since 1915, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Ga., Saturday was dethroned in the final of the national women's championship by Miss Marion Hollins of West Brook, Long Island.

The match ended on the thirty-second green when the Georgian, then 4 down, failed to sink a putt of less than four feet, the ball trickling past the cup. Miss Hollins then held out a three footer which made her the 1921 champion by 5 and 4.

DABAREINER'S RUN WINS FOR JEFFERSON

(By Gazette Correspondent.)

Jefferson—Dabareiner's dash from the center of the field for a touchdown early in the game, gave the local high school a 7 to 0 victory over Oconomowoc here Saturday afternoon. Although the visitors outweighed the locals, they failed to penetrate the Jefferson defense. Bruce Jeff, quarterback, was injured and Berg finished as pilot.

LA CROSSE PROTESTS PLATTEVILLE VICTORY

E. Meusel's Slugging Wins 4th for Giants; Ruth Gets Homer in 9th

New York.—The great Babe Ruth finally struck out his long awaited blow Sunday afternoon, but it was in a dying cause. When the slugger's long drive of a quarter hour of the series disappeared from view past the corner of the right field grandstand, it was already the ninth inning, the Giants were in possession of a two-run lead and not even Ruth could wrest this victory from them.

The eighth inning of the contest was the big inning of the series. In that space of a quarter hour or so, the Giants rose in their might, swept over the peerless Mays with the same fury that they swept over lesser pitchers on Friday, and rescued a game that seemed well lost.

Giants Start Assault.

For seven innings they had pressed Mays with a steady attack, but the only result had been two harmless singles and a row of errors on the score board out in center field.

It looked dark for the McGraw cause. Mays was pitching with cunning and ease and the Yankees were off to two innings removed from their third victory in the series, a triumph that would have given them a tremendous edge. This was the setting for a furious assault, which netted four base hits, two of them singles, one a double and one a triple.

40,000 Brave Cold.

Forty thousand spectators braved a cold wind to see the Giants come from behind and crush the Yankees and tie the series. The fans shivered and shook in the chilly blasts that swept the Polo Grounds as Carl Mays took the slab for the Yanks and was opposed by Phil Douglas. It started drizzle in the first inning but stopped.

For four innings it was a deadly pitchers' battle, both hurlers going as well as they did in the opening contest. Then the Yanks shot over a lone tally and for the next two frames the duel continued.

"Babe" Ruth came on the field a half hour before the game started with his left elbow in a surgeon's bandage. He touched off his first home run of the series in the ninth inning, but unfortunately for the Huggins crew, no one was on the sacks at the time. His hit was a screaming liner that carried far out to the uncovered stands. Ruth got the second hit of the game for the Yanks.

Giants Win in Eighth.

The Giants won the game in the eighth inning. They hammered Mays for four hits and three runs. The drama opened with Emil Meusel sending a lone drive to left for three bases. He came in on Rawlings' single to right. Snyder bunted safely and Rawlings was to whiff. Douglas sacrificed. Mays to Ward, and Rawlings took third and Snyder went home.

Badgers Win 24-3, Though Line Is Weak

(By GEORGE BENNETT.)

Madison.—Wisconsin won her second game of the season, 24 to 3, when she defeated South Dakota college on Randall field Saturday afternoon. It was another ragged display of football.

There was quite a stiff breeze, and the air was too cold for good football. Elliott, Williams and Snyder were the individual stars in the backfield. Brumm, Bunge and Brador starred in the line.

Line Still Weak.

Wisconsin's biggest weakness is her line. Injuries have been responsible for part of it, but the linemen have not quite got the knack of working together as a single unit. There was a decided improvement over last week's showing. The backfield has a tendency to fumble. Three attempts were made for field goals, all of which were unsuccessful.

Rovdy Elliott made several nice end runs and some timely off-tackle line bucking. He shot a long pass to Sundt for a touchdown. He was slightly injured in the last quarter. Guy Sundt made repeated gains through the line and his punting averaged about 45 yards. Gill made a nice dropkick from the 35 yard line. He will be used whenever points are needed.

Rollie Williams shared the glory with Elliott. He always made at least one yard, after being tackled, with his pivoting. He stopped runners several times when they had a clear path to a touchdown. He broke off most of South Dakota's passes after catching them or preventing his opponent from getting them. He formed the interference for Gibson on all punts.

Wisconsin's passing is not working as it should. South Dakota had a much stronger team than Lawrence. They had a tackle that is to be classed with the best in the middle west. One half-back made most of their gains. Wisconsin will have a hard week's practice before them. Nelson, the injured guard and Horne, will be in shape for next week's game. This week will probably be the first of secret practice.
